The image shows the internal components of a laptop, specifically the motherboard, which is placed on a white background. Two rulers are positioned horizontally above and below the motherboard to provide a sense of scale. The motherboard is populated with various electronic components, including several integrated circuits, capacitors, and connectors. A large, dark rectangular component, likely the LCD panel or a heat shield, is attached to the right side of the board. The overall layout suggests a technical inspection or repair process.

A photograph of a disassembled laptop motherboard, likely from a Dell Inspiron 15R series, laid flat on a white surface. The motherboard is dark green and populated with various components including a central processor, memory modules, and various connectors. A ruler is placed horizontally across the top of the board, showing measurements in inches (0 to 6) and centimeters (0 to 15). Another ruler is placed vertically along the left side of the board, showing measurements in inches (0 to 8) and centimeters (0 to 20). The board features several orange-colored mounting points and a large, clear, rectangular protective cover over the central processor area. The overall layout is compact and typical of a laptop's internal architecture.
