

Justification for no antenna gain information

As the antennas connected to the 13.56 MHz transmitter are integral and the output is measured as a field strength at a given distance, antenna gain information is, therefore, not required. Only radiated measurements are used to show compliance with the FCC limits for fundamental and spurious emissions.