Hi Mike,

Here is the answer from Powerwave for 03U1802

Question #1: Please provide additional internal photos to show the solder side of PCB.

ANSWER: Pls see the attached internal photos file. Also Powerwave requested additional confidentiality for all the internal photos. Pls see client's comments as follows.

I also attached revised confidentiality letter.

Powerwave Comments: We would like to proceed with requesting confidentiality for the internal photos. I have highlighted in the document you provided the section I believe applies. In four of the attached photos (photos with single model nos.) we are using a process that is not known to the general public/industry. We prefer not to make this publicly available.

We feel our product falls into the category stated below. It is sold to only one customer and is serviceable by Powerwave or a licensee. It is definitely not accessible by the general public. "Another example is when a non-consumer device is not accessible by the general public, such as a device mounted on the top of a large tower (or in a fenced enclosure) that is only serviceable by the licensee or his designate

Thanks,

Claire
