

28871 Circuit Description

The microcontroller emits a pulse stream whose content depends on which of the buttons was pushed, and contains a code unique to the transmitter. The pulses key an oscillator on and off. The tank coil of the oscillator radiates a small amount of signal power.