Dear Sir,

This letter is to provide additional reference information regarding the schematics documentation for the TXUP500. The schematics information for this TV transmitter is provided and discussed in each assembly of the TXUP500 user manual section rather than as a section unto itself and cannot be effectively separated. The section of the user manual that contains this information has been uploaded to the FCC website. A duplicate of the section of the user manual containing the operational description information was labeled as the schematics exhibit and attempted to be uploaded to the FCC website but it somehow was rejected.

Sincerely,

Greg Best
President
