To whom it may concern,

Dell Computer Corporation offers two series of portable systems, Inspiron and Latitude. Regulatory model PP05L covers two types of systems. Bondi (marketing model D600) is the Latitude version and Benz (marketing model I4200) is the Inspiron version. Both use the same wireless radio and antennas and both are identical electrically and mechanically. The only differences are the cosmetic appearance of the plastics and their marketing model numbers. Please let me know if you need any addition information.

Sincerely,
