

X-10 Model KR31A Operational Description

The model KR31A is a key fob used to activate and deactivate a wireless alarm system. The device transmits when any of the buttons are depressed by the user. When a button is depressed the 310 MHz pulsed RF transmitter inside the KR31A transmits the appropriate pulse code to the alarm receiver to arm and disarm the system.